

SGA

By Deborah Kavira

Director of Public Relations

On Monday, Feb. 3, SGA announced the beginning of Whine Week.

Whine Week lasted for one full week and is the week that MMU students get a chance to voice their opinions, feedback, or what they think should be changed at Mount Mercy. This has been a tradition for the past several years, and SGA values the suggestions of all students. As SGA, it's our job to know what the students are thinking, and how they feel this University should and can be better for everyone. An event like Whine Week allows SGA to know what the students consider to be important, and it allows us to connect with the students by gaining an understanding of what we can do, as every student expects something different from MMU.

The members of SGA went over each of the ideas that students included in the yellow boxes around campus. Each of these 'whines' were discussed and included on what could be done about those suggestions. Some of the recommendations included different parking procedures, Lundy fitness upgrades, applying Mercy crosses to all classrooms, better food options, and an air hockey table in the game room.

Some projects we are looking into and are already working on include buying new cue sticks and ping-pong paddles for the pool room. These new items are being kept at the information desk currently and are available for everyone to use. SGA is also updating our flag collection hanging in the UC to represent everyone from different backgrounds that are currently attending MMU. Be on the lookout for some of these changes! If there are other suggestions, or more detailed suggestions, please contact sga@mtmercy.edu!